Perkins Activity and Resource Guide - Chapter 4: Functional Academics Mary Jane Clark 2013-02-06 This chapter is designed to address the needs of individuals with visual and multiple disabilities who may not be able to follow all parts of a traditional academic classroom, and who need access to and use of core academic skills. The chapter provides an introduction to personalized instruction and resources to help teachers provide students with skills that will be of use throughout their lives. Skill acquisition often takes longer for students with multiple disabilities, and they are not always generalizable to other settings. For this reason it is important to identify skills that will help prepare students to lead the most independent lives possible and to provide many opportunities for practice.

Writing Strategies for the Common Core - Hilary Wolfe 2013-07 Middle-school students must be able to write explanatory/informational, argument, and narrative genre pieces and respond to literature, both for standardized tests and, more importantly, real-world writing. With a balanced literacy approach, Wolfe provides instruction, teaching strategies, and mini-lessons on these test types, each of which can be delivered in a four- to six-week time period. Each mini-lesson includes an introduction, guided practice, independent practice, planning pages, and writing rubrics. For each genre, the book contains: Grade-level standards and performance assessment, reading connections, formative assessments, and reproducible graphic organizers for scaffolding. Prerequisite skill overview rubrics—and both analytic: for formative assessments and holistic for summative assessments—are also provided for each genre unit to simplify your teaching and ensure student success.

Teaching to Learn, Learning to Teach - Alan J. Singer 2015-07-24 Teaching to Learn uniquely addresses three problems that frequently pre-concern and pre-beginning teachers: classroom control, satisfying state and federal mandates, and figuring out exactly what is the role of the teacher.
